ABERTHAW POWER STATION
REPORT BY COUNCILLOR S WILLIAMS

Only the closed site team of 8 people remain on the site tasked with completing the remaining decommissioning works and managing the site through the sale process and subsequent demolition.

The decommissioning has progressed very well despite being disrupted by the Covid-19 lockdowns and restrictions put in place with some key workstreams being significantly delayed.

The electrical supplies to the site were disconnected in November and since then the site offices, chimney lights, etc. have been supplied via a diesel generator. This diesel generator will remain until the new 11kV electrical supply to the site is installed. This is expected in the next 3 months.

Two more diesel generators are also currently required, one to supply the 275kV substation and the other to supply the decommissioning works in the CW pump house. The substation generator will remain in place until National Grid install their own alternative supply from Western Power Distribution and the Cooling Water pump house generator use will end in the next two weeks.

All the chemicals, oils, fuels and waste products have been removed as far as possible within the scope of the decommissioning project. The low level of residual hazards that remain are best dealt with as part of the demolition program.

Staff have tried to find homes for useful redundant items with donations to local schools and a charity that refurbishes IT equipment for schools in the UK and Africa.

The remaining tasks include - the final separation works from the two high voltage substations, completing the cooling water separation from the Bristol Channel and installing the new 11kV alternative electrical supply.

Subject to planning approval, two areas of the site have been identified for early demolition. These are the Ash Reprocessing Plant towards the Eastern side of the site and the Carbon Capture Plant on the Western Side. The program of works for the demolitions will extend from April through to around August. These areas are relatively small in relation to the site as a whole therefore the impact for local residents should be minimal.

Concerns from local residents continue to be addressed. One is regarding the nature reserve and the lagoon. Due to the significant rainfall during February the paths around the nature reserve were very muddy and it was suspected that the lagoon drain was blocking with silt. Whilst we believe the drain was not completely blocked, we have since removed an amount of silt from around the grids and the levels have fallen back to normal. The pathways are still muddy in places and we are looking at options for improving the drainage in the area in preparation for next winter.

Another issue that has been raised is people hunting on the ash mound. This is of grave concern to us. Any information that can be passed onto us about people trespassing on the ash mound would be greatly appreciated. Contact email address or phone number below. Increased security patrols of ash mound are in place and repairs made to the fence where it has been damaged.

The permissive pathway on the Eastern side of the ash mound passes under a disused bridge which is showing signs of decay and could be a safety hazard to people walking the path. Signage and barriers have been put in place to prevent people from walking under the bridge whilst it is decided what longer term action needs to put in place. There is evidence that people are bypassing the barriers and walking under the bridge so please respect the barriers for your own safety.

Water is no longer supplied to the site from Ely Wells and discussions are taking place with Welsh Water about capping the pipework. The reservoirs at St Lythan's and East Aberthaw have also been drained.

During the heavy rains there was flooding evident at the Western side of the site. Drains from the ditches which connect to the power station drains were checked to be clear. Due to the large amount of water on the site and the inability to discharge all the time (due to tidal levels in the channel), it took some time for the levels on site to subside and start to flow again. We are making some improvements to the management of the site surface water drains which should help prevent a recurrence.

The planned formal sales process for the site has now started with the release of the sales brochure. Expressions of interest have been requested by 7th April 2021 before access to the data room can begin. The deadline for all bids is 22nd June 2021.

If a buyer for the site is found then all activities, including demolition will transfer to the new owner. If a buyer cannot be found then RWE will complete the demolition of the site and then look for options for sale or redevelopment.
